The Utah Territory members, notwithstanding the belligerent homelessness of Mr. Saunders, have resolved to endorse the Chamberlain amendments to the Government Land bill, such as they desire to be. Their opposition would not have amounted for much. There are only three of them, three of whom hold posts in the Government. Most of the others are connected by ties of blood or marriage with Tory officials. The Mormons have been wont to fear from the British Tory members ever since 1745, seeing them from the battle of Culloden Tories.

In addition to the Local Option law under which extremely prohibition is enforced in 10 counties of the State, the temperance people in Georgia now propose to try the effect of a high-license law in the other twenty-two counties which remain prohibition free. At the session of the State Legislature Wednesday afternoon Dr. Roberts's bill, providing that every proprietor of a wine-room should pay a license fee of $1,000 per annum, was passed by a large majority. There are other bodies as to whether Gov. Stone will approve the bill. If he does not it is believed he can get 101 into the effect of closing up nearly all the liquor saloons in the leading town of the Pine North, except a few in the larger towns like Savannah.

The demand for money for miscellaneous purposes was good and the market was steady. Buying into was quiet and unchanged. Government securities were in moderate demand. The New York stock market was quiet and strong. The Chicago produce markets were very active, except in corn, and averaged lower. It is probable that Russian agents are at the bottom of the reported disturbances in Bulgaria. The Czar sees in the effort to make the Ottoman Prince the ruler of the new kingdom an Austrian conquest. He has determined to effect it with one of his own, which may lead to a good deal of trouble, long. The European armaments for most of two are growing vastly.

Mr. Flower is evidently well pleased with the amended Erie canal bill. It is so much better than he had any reason to expect that he advises the people to accept it with cheerfulness. "If the Democratic Assembly and Senate do not," he says, "and if no opposition is to be met from Governor, there will be no need to use the Constitution, which will then become a mouldy memorial of the time when the Tory Party wanted to the statute of 1817." Mr. Flower evidently wishes to avoid the necessity of the Democratic members to give their reasons on account for persevering here to secure the same language which he says has stolen from the men.

I would still urge the Erie to submit to any appropriation, by the Legislature, which may be necessary to complete the canal improvements. There being no great conflicting interests to adjust between the different sections of the State, as there are in the case of an appropriation for a new canal, there will be no excuse for any opposition. But I do not believe that the Legislature will make any appropriation for the canal. I think it will be better to submit the question of improvement to the people, and let them say whether they will have the canal improved or not. If they say it shall be improved, I am confident that a loan of $10,000,000 can be negotiated at a low rate of interest, and that the canal will be completed in a few years. If the people do not want the canal improved, they will say so, and the State will be relieved from the necessity of spending any money upon it. I am confident that the people will vote for the improvement, and that the canal will be completed in a few years. If the people do not want the canal improved, they will say so, and the State will be relieved from the necessity of spending any money upon it.

It is likely that the Irish people will be fully equal to the emergency, and will not [illegible] on the account of their great leader.

The straight grade of No. 2 Chicago spring wheat sold in the market last Wednesday at 68 cents per quarter in the harbor at Liverpool, being equal to only 57 cents per bushel, "cost, freight, and insurance." This is the lowest price ever reported, the nearest point we approach to it being the 58 cents and 4 pence accepted on one occasion from Baltimore. The private letters of yesterday brought some other orders at about that figure, though they were generally understood to be a shade below it, and they also brought the information that the whole crop of the United Kingdom this year is estimated to be about 72,000,000 quarters, or not far from 80,000,000 bushels. But little more than 5,000,000 quarters larger than the yield of last year is to be had to export a demand on outside sources, including the United States. This fact is undoubtedly influencing the course of prices for wheat started to supply current consumption before the harvest of this year is available, but it does not materially lessen the quantity required to be imported during the next few weeks. The English harvest has thus not come along till August, and the wheat is not ready for use till a considerably later date, as the grain takes longer to dry in that moist climate than in ours. The exact trend in prices here may be described as "a guess and" to the local owners of the United Kingdom, as it has enabled them to buy at least 60,000,000 bushels at, say, 57 cents per bushel, less than they would otherwise have been forced to pay for it.

[PROHIBITION] PLAIN.

One of the most important and best-established checks to the ten National Republican platform is this:

We favor the enforcement of national statutes for restriction of immigration.

The party having sufficient belief had an opportunity to put this great doctrine into practical operation in any way. With the portfolio of State in Democratic hands the policy above outlined must necessarily be in abeyance. The Democracy is not a party of progress in any direction. It is pledges by its past and by all the traditions which hedge it about to put on the backs rather than the steps, to put on the Mrs rather than apply the whip. It must not be supposed, however, that this does not bother much one action on another on the evil head of a Erie canine. The same which is indispensably curious is by no means sure to deceive thereby, although sometimes gives the advancement of a great Democratic party. That brief sentence was a resounding hit between a pat which was just on practical strength and the conventional effrontery which is usually certain to raise sooner or later, with the United States, in all probability, leading the way.

It is now about fifty years since the idea of withdrawing all controversies between nations began to be seriously discussed in the more civilized parts of this country, and every thirty years since the agitation died out. The exciting effect of Charles Sumner was an enormous discussion and advocacy of universal peace. That question was published before we were united to the Senate, and did much to attract attention to it as a pressing one of extraordinary interest and great importance to public officers. It has been the cause that no sugar, the Christian Union, edited by Miss Burrit, "the earnest Unitarian." Forty years ago the House of representatives record was much more liberal than it is now. But the War of the Rebellion drove peace thoughts from the minds of those who had been its especial advocates, nearly all of whom were statesmen. The Mexican War had given the cause a move, but the necessity of taking up arms to preserve the Union and free-ten were gone to, on the other hand, a success. Some of the great old pioneers in the cause of conservation and peace died with the conviction in their souls, the voice and treaties compromise for the settling of the work of years for the next part, however, the trouble of arbitration occupies the sentiments of the Union as the greatest safety ever was for the cause of peace, and more recent to hold to patience for a revival of the peace cause. The defeat of the Republican party in 1892 was a public protection of that consideration.

The one prevent triumph of the arbitration policy during the few years was was under the Wing administration. A joint resolution was adopted by Congress directing that henceforth treaties negotiated between the United States and other countries should contain a clause to the effect that if any misunderstanding should arise prior or to the interpretation of any part of a treaty it should be settled by arbitration. Senator Platt of Vermont introduced the resolution and engineered it through the Senate, and Congressman Hitchcock of the same State pressed its adoption by the House. It has been carried out in good faith. The more been engraved to the Legislature of Vermont and was kindly received by the resolutions and seemingly hollow efforts of a few private citizens whose names were never known beyond their own immediate vicinage. The arbitration action, adopted by the United States early in the 90ths, prepared the way for the amicable settlement of the Alabama claims. There is not a nation on the globe, probably, which has not among its treaties a document granting the adoption of the arbitration policy as between that nation and this. A deal of peace in this world, in every act, a small terms bill in every session of some.

The Treasury of yesterday stated the new listing of the eight chief nations of Europe, including the Ottoman army in India. The number is a war footing is 21,441,784, the regular standing army being 3,473,961. Each nation is afraid of its neighbors, and each alleged is in preparation for an assault at short notice. The Great Republic, having no standing military force of any consequence, but a greater military reserve power than any other nation on the globe if disposed to the calling it, is in a position to be the leader in a general policy of international arbitration. That policy once definitely adopted as ours can or three of the great Powers of Europe, those now armies would no longer be needed and would undoubtedly soon adopt the law in the case.

THE DEMOCRACY.

The Ohio Democratic State Convention met at Cleveland yesterday and carried out the program arranged in advance by the controlling element without a break, and almost without opposition. The few things that were in case a resolution approving the Administration, except the downright pleasant remarks employed in such cases. This form was good enough with, it proceeded without unnecessary delay to nominate the "full" ticket given in Governor, Thomas E. Powell of Jefferson County. He is the man who is supposed to have delivered the complete fund which elected Henry B. Payne to the United States Senate and made "Johnnie" McLean the "head" of the Ohio Democracy. What Boeing was to the Democratic party in Chicago Powell has been to the same party in Ohio at large. As sad to him to-to-day. There is an appearance of carrying the State, but it takes the machine in the hands of the "bills" and none can work save Thurman and Faulkner, who do not suit the purposes of the Hanchett-Gil crowd.

But the significant thing about the convention was not the nomination of Powell but the defeat of Poole, and that by a majority as great as he is making. While Powell had the support of the machine managers in the country, Poole came before the convention as the candidate of the labor element of the party. There were two ballots. On the first Powell had 551, Poole 49, on the second the vote between them stood 600 to 49. Another candidate, Campbell, was mentioned in between times, but he manifestly had no genuine significance. The convention was obliged to choose between conservative capital and labor, and stood about five to one on the first ballot in favor of the former, the preponderance being still greater on the next and final ballot. The Labor party had its State convention recently and put a ticket in the field. Powell's candidacy afforded an opportunity to once more let the disaffected workingmen. Instead of adopting that policy the convention put an especially emphatic vote upon it, saying in effect that the "law" in the columns of the Department of Ohio. Experience has frequently demonstrated that bolts cannot carry the State, but this is makes good sense for the "boys" while the campaign is on, and Gen. Powell's reflection, no matter what carries the Democrats way next in freely conceded. The workers did not care to put themselves on half notices for the good of the party on some future election.

A JURY OF LAWS.

At length a jury has been secured for the trial of the suicide Commissioners and ex-Commissioners in Judge Jamieson's court. The defendants' lawyers having exhausted their 20 peremptory challenges yesterday the additional jurors to make the necessary twelve good men and true were ready and readily secured. So far as appearances go the jury is a good one. The members of it appear to be intelligent, representative citizens who are prepared to return a verdict in accordance with the law and the evidence. Great care was taken to that effect. They were drawn from among over 400 talesmen summoned. The prosecuting counsel peremptorily challenged seventy. The remainder of the talesmen exhausted the defendants' counsel's challenges. The prosecuting counsel for the defense counsel (3) in the same way. They would have used 1,000 each challenges each but for the limitation of time. They were compelled to the rulings of the court in reference to the qualifications of jurors, and the adherence of their right to challenge peremptorily was exercised to prior to furnish a technical basis of appeal from the Judge's rulings. Over 300 jurors were challenged for cause—principally for the reason that they have such implicit confidence in the trading corporations of this city that they had no present hope in the published statements concerning business and matters in the management of county affairs. The State are fortably under the impression of such belief a spark of challenge, and that before many a talesman citizen is done jury service. The persons of the State are hearing on this point a factor, frankness, and resolution. It ought to be repeated.

That so much time has been spent in charging the jury was certainly not the fault of the Judge this time. He took particular pains to expedite the selection. His rulings were clear and prompt. He did not permit the lawyers too much latitude in their examinations. Irrelevant questions were not allowed. As before stated, the 20 peremptory challenges allowed to the defense under the law, and the surprising readiness of intelligent citizens to their jurors pressed, have been the cause of the delay.

And now that the jury is completed the public will become more interesting to the public. Today or to-morrow Commissioner Rogers, Contractor Schlogen, ex-Commissioner Lyon, Ex-Inspector, and others will enlighten the people at large how the taxpayers of Cook County have been swindled. A great deal is to be heard with the subsection pointed about the manner of the jury, how many times they stood 11 to 1 for conviction, and how many times they stood 11 to 1 for acquittal. Some of the jurors will be lost to fame and consequently. Others will not escape any prominence from the old parties, but will go to and from their business as usual. Others will be [illegible] and [illegible] and [illegible] and

HAS STANLEY BEEN SLAIN?

A REPORT THAT THE EXPLORER WAS KILLED IN AFRICA.

Conflicting Stories Received in London, Including the Last Bit—Is Said That Tippo-Tip, Known Below as Hashingo to Mr. Long in the Commons, Arranged for the French Escort of the Ambassador.

London, July 21.—A dispatch from St. Thomas, West Africa, says: "The Welsh Fusiliers have received a report that Henry M. Stanley, the African explorer, has been shot dead by natives with whom he had gone to assist in settling a dispute."

Another account says that the chiefs of which Stanley was proceeding to the relief of Emin Bey had risen, and that the explorer was murdered.

The report of Stanley's death, received from a missionary at Banali, who received it from a native from the country. No official message has been received from the expedition.

The rumor regarding the death of H. M. Stanley is clearly discredited here. The most authentic news from the new Free Congo State, and the most recent date of French advices, is contained in a letter to a resident of Banali and Ibru St. Thomas from that town. The distance between Banali and Stanley's camp is 1,000 miles through the roughest country.

Sir Henry Thurston Holland, Secretary of State for the Colonies, stated in the Commons this afternoon that the Government had no information about the reported death of Henry M. Stanley.

Mr. Lawson Johnston, Secretary of the Free Trade Hall Committee, having received a telegram from Mr. Stanley that Mr. Stanley would arrive in Manchester on Aug. 6, inquired of the Government whether they had any information on the subject.

Sir Henry Holland replied that he had received no information about the movements of Mr. Stanley.

Discontent in Brussels.

Brussels, July 21.—[Special Cable.] Sir Charles Dilke's Second—The reports of the death of Henry M. Stanley are considered unfounded. The Etoile says no renewal proceeds from Mr. Stanley's entry into Emin Pasha's camp. Mr. Stanley is with Emin Pasha, Director of the Province of Equator and Governor of the Province of Wadelai, on the Albert Nyanza lake. Mr. Stanley is making further explorations in that region. The Etoile says that Mr. Stanley's return to Europe will be delayed by the necessity of escorting Emin Pasha's caravan to the coast. GREAT BRITAIN.

Mr. Gladstone Makes an Apology for His Visit to Lord.

London, July 21.—Sir Thomas Esmonde (Home Ruler), member for Dublin City, appeared before the House of Commons this afternoon in obedience to the summons to explain the charge made by Mr. Long (Conservative, member for East Bristol), to the effect that he (Esmonde) had, in the lobby and in the presence of several gentlemen, called Mr. Long a liar. Esmonde said that he had not used the word, but that the conversation was lighting to refer to other matters.

Another account says that the disease on which Stanley was proceeding to the relief of Emin Bey was small, and that the explorer was drowned.

The So-Called Business of London Full of People Whose Sphere Ought Not to Be Found. A Lively and Full Is to the Penny-Dreadful High Society Likely to Succeed Here and Make Residence in London to Many Not Desirable.

LONDON, July 21.—There is a race among even the idler people in London society to see who can secure the most amusing and notice. The so-called society of London is made up largely of people who have special gifts for securing themselves in the front with their methods of advertising. A social activity next the other day that there were only four Dukes in London among. The other Dukes against only upon the surface on the occasion of some great social festivity, and are never seen at any of the somewhat gatherings of what is known as society. London has such an enormous population that to entertain on an elegant scale, even in one of the highest class private dwellings is the most open way. They will select some fashionable neighborhood and an opinion. Sometimes these extraordinary social entertaining with a short circle of friends and acquaintances, never thinking or dreaming of going out or receiving generally. The difference are as great in London that is as always going through the regular routine of society becomes a utter bad thing, sometimes. The summons of the nobility to entertain. There there are many members of the English social circles that are more and who would adopt the great American plutocrats were going into general society. Many of the leaders in London society who are the most prominent and most persistent in the newspapers have no social position, and nobody cares to know them. They have made their money by trade, and nevertheless, and by the possession of which to be admitted to the best society. Such great aristocrats and noblemen as the Duke of Westminster, the Duke of Devonshire, the Duke of Portland, and many other of the most prominent and most influential men in England never appear in society. ANOTHER INTERVIEW WITH THE KENTUCKIAN IN CHICAGO.

The "Star-Eyed Goddess" of Reclamation Joins Issue Squarely Against Cleveland on Protection Cleveland, the Solid Right Now Backed, the Question of Sugar Schools, Civil Service, and Spoils—Opposition Responses of the Anti-Bigotry Speaker.

New York Herald, July 21. Everybody in New York was not immediately interested. There was one man within the limit did not affect. Col. Henry Watterson, the accomplished editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, the pride of the Blue-grass region, and father of the Star-Eyed Goddess of Reform, was in no way studying great social problems on the most exalted principles, the Democratic party, and concerned himself the not guessing he would in Chicago. The Colonel, the particular legend and cool, was not in a Herald reporter who dropped in to chat with him on Presidential prospects the world, and the marriage of 18th.

"It seems to me," said Mr. Watterson, "that the political elements are pretty well mostly looking themselves on either side of two formally distinct party lines and shaping themselves for a contest next year which figures can be correctly nearly described."

"As to what plan, what of it?"

"What are these, will be to cancel? Why, the Gold Bonds and high tariff on one side, the Administration and the advocates of home on the other, with each incidental and collateral foreshadows and tremendous as the principles can lay it to stand, and that Democrats and Republicans, the Democrats and Republicans."

"What is the significance?"

"I understand the President will be one of them. His administration is over a Democratic administration, and through it was pretty fully committed to the principles of the party, it will not be entirely in accord with the party. I do not suppose it will, but we will see."

"What about that Democratic opposition?"

"As you know, I favored the Democratic party would accept a high tariff in the form and I supported Gen. Harrison President on that platform. There seems to be some misunderstanding about this. Harrison is not responsible for the tariff bill. He does not favor the old high tariff again, with some material reductions."

"What will those reductions be?"

"I don't know. I suppose
